World Journal of Pediatrics: Global Platform for Pediatric Research and Clinical Practice

The World Journal of Pediatrics is a leading monthly peer-reviewed journal dedicated to advancing child health worldwide. It publishes original research, reviews, and special reports across all areas of pediatrics, including pediatric surgery, preventive healthcare, pharmacology, stomatology, and biomedicine. By also covering basic sciences and experimental studies, the journal provides a broad academic platform for global knowledge exchange. All submissions undergo rigorous peer review by expert referees, with decisions provided within two months, and exceptional works fast-tracked within one month. With its commitment to timely, high-quality publications, the World Journal of Pediatrics serves as a trusted resource for pediatricians and researchers, driving innovation and improving clinical practice in child healthcare globally.